

Paul Finley

Co-opted Governor

I live in Durham with my wife and I work at the University where I deliver training to the academic community on Statistics and Statistical software. Prior to this I was a secondary school teacher for ten years where I have worked at all levels from a classroom teacher to a senior leader. In my spare time I also volunteer with Citizens Advice in Durham City where I am currently training to be an advisor.

Given my background I have a wealth of experience and knowledge which I want to use to contribute to our local community school. As a governor at Edmondsley I want to offer effective strategic oversight so that the school can maintain its already high standards.
